Whether Wife's financial resources are sufficient to sustain her without the contribution of the separate estate of Husband. Under the terms of the parties' agreed divorce decree, Wife was awarded a personal property settlement of $40,000, subject to a $14,000 payment to Husband by December 15, 2001. She was also to receive spousal support in the amount of $1,000 per month for a period of one year. According to Wife, her expenses were $11,684 in 2001 and $10,567 in 2002, a difference of $1,611.45 per month. As Wife concedes, the trial court found that Husband's net monthly income at the time of the final hearing was $3,622. It is undisputed that Husband's 401(k) plan was 100% vested; however, as noted above, he was not permitted to withdraw any of his vested funds until age fifty-five, which was later amended to age fifty-seven. In its memorandum opinion, the trial court found that the fact that Husband is over fifty-seven years old
